

OUTLOOK & REVIEW

- > The Fund's Class A units were down -3.30% (-3.21% for Class F) in December while the benchmark S&P/TSX Composite (TR) Index was down -5.40%. In a very volatile month, short positions had a positive impact, aided by selection and allocation effects in the long book.
- > On a net basis (long and short), Consumer Staples and Materials added the most value through a combination of allocation and security selection effects. In addition to some market-level hedges, a long position in Agnico Eagle Mines Limited (AEM) offered the largest contribution among individual positions.
- > On a net basis (long and short), Industrials and Energy were a sector-level drag, largely on allocation effects in the short book. Long positions in Canadian Pacific Railway Limited (CP) and BRP, Inc. (DOO) were the largest detractors among individual positions.
- > We continue to believe that as late cycle dynamics play out, more dispersion in the market creates opportunity for long/short mandates. While the fund maintains a modest cyclical bias, positioning has become increasingly conservative, seeking to sell into rallies rather than add risk on pullbacks.
