

OUTLOOK & REVIEW

- > The Fund's Class A units returned 0.12% (0.21% for Class F) in December, versus the benchmark S&P/TSX Composite (TR) Index return of -5.40%. Broad market declines benefitted the short book, but the long book also added value.
- > In addition to broad market hedges, Materials and Consumer Staples added value on a net basis (long and short) through a combination of selection and allocation effects. A long position in Agnico Eagle Mines Limited (AEM) offered the largest contribution among individual positions.
- > On a net basis (long and short), Energy and Industrials were a sector-level drag, largely on allocation effects in the short book. Long positions in Canadian Pacific Railway Limited (CP) and BRP, Inc. (DOO) were the largest detractors among individual positions.
- > We continue to believe that as late cycle dynamics play out, more dispersion in the market creates opportunity for long/short mandates, including market neutral. While the fund maintains a modest cyclical bias, positioning has become increasingly conservative, seeking to sell into rallies rather than add risk on pullbacks.
