

OUTLOOK & REVIEW

- > The Fund's Class A units returned 0.12% (0.21% for Class F) in December, versus the benchmark S&P/TSX Composite (TR) Index return of -5.40%. Broad market declines benefitted the short book, but the long book also added value.
- > In addition to broad market hedges, Materials and Consumer Staples added value on a net basis (long and short) through a combination of selection and allocation effects. A long position in Agnico Eagle Mines Limited (AEM) offered the largest contribution among individual positions.
- > On a net basis (long and short), Energy and Industrials were a sector-level drag, largely on allocation effects in the short book. Long positions in Canadian Pacific Railway Limited (CP) and BRP, Inc. (DOO) were the largest detractors among individual positions.
- > We continue to believe that as late cycle dynamics play out, more dispersion in the market creates opportunity for long/short mandates, including market neutral. While the fund maintains a modest cyclical bias, positioning has become increasingly conservative, seeking to sell into rallies rather than add risk on pullbacks.

Highlight

The Fund's objective is to provide consistent long-term capital appreciation with an attractive risk-adjusted rate of return.

Strategy

Build a portfolio that is long the most attractive stocks and short the most unattractive stocks based on our multi-factor ranking system. We will buy quality companies in the midst of fundamental positive change with reasonable valuations and sell short lower quality companies in the midst of negative fundamental change that have high valuations.
